Welcome to our Almanac update for Semester 2, 2022/23. In addition to all the events running across the semester, online and in-person, we're able to include our Researchers' Week too – a wide variety of sessions dedicated specifically to our PGRs, and the University of Wolverhampton Annual Research Conference. This week really is a coming together of our research culture, and a major highlight of our year. For me, it's a chance to hear the conference papers from many of our PGRs, and find out more about their pathbreaking research. I do hope you're able to join us!

Reimagining Probation and the Rehabilitation of Offenders Conference

Wednesday 18th January 2023, 09:00 – 17:30, University of Wolverhampton City Campus.

Various Speakers.

Book via:- <https://www.eventbrite.co.uk/e/reimagining-probation-and-the-rehabilitation-of-offenders-tickets-472521272847?aff=ebdssbdestsearch>

This conference aims to explore new developments, policies, and practices in probation and the rehabilitation of offenders. The new era of the renationalisation of the Probation Service in England and Wales has established a redefined reality for the service where both low- and high-risk offenders are supervised by the National Probation Service. This has also meant the introduction and involvement of new and existing partners in the supervision of offenders in both prison and community settings. The Target Operating Model for probation services in England and Wales published in early 2021 has set renewed principles, anticipated benefits, and promises for offenders, victims, and probation officers in the renationalised infrastructure of probation. These ranging from transforming through partnerships, an open culture, and consistent supervision to changes in the language of probation, modernising estates, and more manageable workloads remain to be evaluated in both academia and practice. This conference thereby invites academics and practitioners to discuss their experiences, examinations, or expectations of this renationalisation enterprise and further appraise what path the new model imagines for probation and the rehabilitation of offenders.

Organised by our colleagues in the Criminology team. The event is free, but registration is required. Lunch and refreshments will be provided.

FEHW

Centre for Psychological Research: 'Male victims of domestic violence'

Wednesday 18th January 2023, 14:00-15:00, location TBC.

Speaker: Natalie Quinn-Walker, Birmingham City University.

For further details contact Dr Manpal Bhogal (m.s.b2@wlv.ac.uk)

Natalie's PhD research at the University of Wolverhampton reviewed whether male domestic abuse victim's voices are believed and efficiently supported when disclosing to their family and friends.

Domestic abuse is gripping the nation, due to the devastating public health concerns affected by not only the victims but their families too, causing a rippling effect. The stigma of domestic abuse for male victims can only be tackled with further research, empowering victims to come forward, and educating the nation to ensure when a victim does disclose, it is not dismissed.

WLV Wallet's free online webinars, delivered by inspirational speakers, are designed to empower students to succeed and develop their study skills, wellbeing, resilience, and employability.

Communicating with data effectively is an increasingly important skill, yet is often overlooked. This session will cover some of the essentials including understanding your audience, choosing appropriate chart types, and making best use of text and colour to produce engaging content.

Alan leads an interdisciplinary team of journalists across the FT's newsrooms in London, New York and Hong Kong. An experienced presenter, Alan has lectured extensively on how to communicate with data. His TEDx talk "Why you should love statistics" was a TED.com featured talk in 2017. Before he joined the FT, Alan was Head of Digital Content at the UK Office for National Statistics, where he founded its award-winning data visualisation centre. He was awarded an OBE in 2011 for services to official statistics.

FABSS LGBT+ History Month	LGBT+ History Month: The Singing Forrest: Talk with Glass Artist Max Stewart
	Wednesday 1 st February 2023, 14:00 – 15:00, The Wolverhampton School of Art University of Wolverhampton The George Wallis Building (MK) Molineux Street, City Campus North WV1 1DT.
	Speaker:- Dr Max Stewart, University of Wolverhampton.
	Book via: https://www.eventbrite.co.uk/e/lgbt-history-the-singing-forrest-talk-with-glass-artist-max-stewart-tickets-495118792637?aff=ebdssbdestsearch

The Wolverhampton School of Art is delighted to present a talk with glass artist Dr Max Stewart.

In his uncompromisingly brutal pâte de verre and cast glass work, Max Stewart explores his own gay male identity, and in doing so is unafraid to confront issues of gender and sexual experience. Throughout his work Stewart describes the human condition and places the viewer at the heart of the piece.

Playing with a myriad of subject matter over the past decade has produced a body of work that informs and provokes those who encounter it. The head, the mask, the sense of space between the viewer and the viewed have all combined to produce an imagery, which Stewart uses to disturb and incite his audience: when tribal and modern fetish subject matter combine new gods and monsters are formed; metaphors and similes become deliberately confused, and the space between the audience and performer dissolves.

An ongoing exploration of the gay male experience in the concentration camps of Nazi Germany is a current theme in his work and gives title to this lecture.

Critical reading and self-critical writing How to develop a convincing literature review

Wednesday 1st February 2023, 14:00 - 15:30, Online.

Speakers: Mike Wallace, Professor of Public Management at Cardiff Business School, Cardiff University and Alison Wray is a Research Professor of Language and Communication at Cardiff University.

Book via: <https://www.wlv-wallet.co.uk/student-journey/events/study-skills/article/critical-reading-self-critical-writing-how-develop-convincing-literature-review>

WLV Wallet's free online webinars, delivered by inspirational speakers, are designed to empower students to succeed and develop their study skills, wellbeing, resilience, and employability.

Critical Reading and Writing for Postgraduates

This webinar explores the main ideas in our book Critical Reading and Writing for Postgraduates (Sage, edition 4, 2021) and the accompanying online exercises. We'll explain why a critical literature review is vital for creating a convincing argument in your dissertation or thesis.

We'll consider questions like: What is an argument? What does 'convincing' mean? What does 'critical' mean? We'll explain how you can avoid just describing what others have said, so you add value within the literature review as a core aspect of your own research, rather than a tedious display of what you found in your searches!

We'll introduce you to techniques for evaluating what you read, to determine if it is convincing in its own right and if it is relevant to your own project. We'll show you what authors need to have done, for you to find their claims credible and useful.

And then we'll turn the tables. You as a writer need to use those same techniques to convince those who read your work critically - including your supervisors, examiners and readers of anything you publish. To this end, we'll explain how to construct a convincing argument, using appropriate evidence to support your claims.

Welcome and overview of the day (Dr Debra Cureton)

Dealing with imposter syndrome and confidence techniques (Dr Debra Cureton)

In this session Debra will cover how to deal with pre-interview nerves. She will share some tips about how to reframe nerves so that they are positive and benefit us during the interview process.

Interview questions and how to answer them (Dr Ben Halligan)

In this session Ben will look at some of the common interview questions, explore what they are really asking and give you some tips about how to give a strong answer. Ben will also provide a space for a 'Hot Seat' experience where you can practice answering questions and get feedback from Ben and peers from within the session.

Lunch

Mock Interviews for those who have booked.

Underfoot, Overlooked - Stories from the soil
Saturday 4 th February 2023, 10:00 – 12:00, Bantock House, Wolverhampton.
Various Speakers
For more information and to book: https://www.wolvesliteraturefestival.co.uk/events/underfoot-overlooked-stories-from-the-soil.html

The soil beneath our feet is one of the least understood parts of nature and is only now getting the recognition it deserves as vital for biodiversity and climate resilience. Join us on a walk to adventure underground (through our imaginations), discover how soil is represented in cultures across the world — and devise your own poetry!

Underfoot encourages people to consider the soil and appreciate the importance of the microscopic, hidden ecology beneath us. The event starts with a walk in the park (with regular stops) and prompts us to consider unexpected aspects of the trees, soil and fungi. As we explore, we'll create a poem collectively that responds to the space.

The second part is a workshop in Bantock House. Participants will learn about soil health and existing cultural representations of soil and dirt.

At the end of the session, everyone will be welcome to share reflections and record or write their own soil stories, adding to the Soil Voices' map and contributing to awareness of soil across the globe.

This event is led by artist Poppy Flint and feeds into an ongoing project Underfoot. She is collaborating with Dr. Jude Allen from Soil Voices. It is supported by soil ecology researchers from Harper Adams University.

Black History Poetry Competition Winners’ Event

Tappay Tales

Saturday 4th February 2023, 13:00 – 14:00, Wolverhampton Art Gallery.

Performer: Abda Khan

For more information and to book:

Tappay Tales is a project by Abda Khan about Pakistani and South Asian culture and heritage, explored through old folk and wedding songs.

Abda gathered traditional Pakistani folk and wedding songs from older generations in Birmingham. She transliterated and translated them, held creative writing workshops — at which participants from the community created new writing, inspired by the old verses — commissioned new poetry, and created a stage script: Rani and Ameer. All this creative work was shared through live performances. A book has also been published, and a short film about the project is available. At this event, you will be able to enjoy the essence of the project through moving drama, enchanting music, inspirational readings, an exploration of the songs and their hidden meanings; followed by a Q&A.

Passing the Buck: A new play by Bob Williams-Findlay

After talking to long standing friend Mags, Steph had come to a decision: no longer carry out the ‘big sister’ act, looking after her mother Muriel and run her homebased business. It was time for Mark to put his money where his mouth was and for David to give her some support. She decides to call an emergency family conference and confront her brothers regarding their responsibilities.

Bob is a former Wolverhampton City Council Equality Officer and a trainer, with both the Council and University. Although retired, he is the Engagement Officer with Act 4 Inclusion which campaigns around the Crisis within Social Care and the need for inclusive living. Bob’s play, Passing the Buck, reflects his long-time commitment to using writing to express his feelings and speak out against social injustice.

University of Wolverhampton Lecture: ‘How digital learning can support diverse communities’

Wednesday 22nd February 2023, 18:00 – 19:00, Online via Teams – Link provided on booking

Speaker:- John Traxler, FRSA, MBCS, MIET, AFIMA, Professor of Digital Learning, Institute of Education, University of Wolverhampton

Book via: <https://www.eventbrite.co.uk/e/university-of-wolverhampton-lecture-by-prof-john-traxler-tickets-486838756827>

Abstract

In December 2021 I became UNESCO Chair in Innovative Informal Digital Learning in Disadvantaged and Development Contexts. The UNESCO Chair network is some 800 leading researchers from around the world whose work supports UNESCO’s mission and especially supports working towards the Sustainable Development Goals. At a recent conference at the UNESCO HQ in Paris, the mission of the Chairs was restated in the context of global challenges, interdisciplinary research and knowledge justice. Our Chair’s brief is the chance to reconsider the role of digital learning in addressing (domestic) disadvantage and (international) development in this context and show how some of our current work contributes to these ideals. This talk will show how digital learning can support diverse communities who are distant and different from the global and national mainstreams in terms of culture, infrastructure, resources and priorities.

Biography

John Traxler, FRSA, MBCS, AFIMA, MIET, is a Professor of Digital Learning and UNESCO Chair in Innovative Informal Digital Learning in Disadvantaged and Development Contexts. His papers have been cited over 10,000 times and Stanford lists him in the top 2% in his discipline.

He was a pioneer of mobile learning, starting in the 2000s with the issues of technology and pedagogy but, in the 2010s, more concerned with the impact and consequences on societies, cultures and communities of mobility and connectivity, and the impact on the nature of disadvantage.

LGBT+ History Month: In Conversation with Journalist Paul Brand

Thursday 23rd February 2023, 18:00 – 19:00, virtual/in person hybrid event, Screen School, University of Wolverhampton, City Campus, Alan Turing Building (MI) WV1 1LY.

Speaker:- Paul Brand, ITV Journalist.

Book via: <https://www.eventbrite.co.uk/e/lgbt-history-month-in-conversation-with-journalist-paul-brand-virtual-tickets-520635243027?aff=ebdssbdestsearch>

The University of Wolverhampton is delighted to present an in-conversation event with journalist Paul Brand. Paul will be joined by Gareth Owen, Senior Lecturer and Course Leader in Multimedia Journalism.

Paul will discuss LGBT issues within the media industry and also his investigative work around gay conversion therapy.

Paul Brand is the UK Editor for ITV News and presenter of ITV's current affairs programme Tonight, covering the defining stories of our time. He regularly reports and has guest presented on Good Morning Britain, as well as providing expert analysis for Lorraine. He is a presenter on LBC Radio, as well as ITV's Peston show.

In 2021/2022 he won a string of national and international awards, including London Press Club Broadcaster of the Year, for his explosive scoops revealing the partygate scandal. His exclusives included the infamous video of Downing Street staff laughing and joking about a Christmas Party and damaging revelations about Boris Johnson's lockdown-breaking birthday party.

In 2020 he was named Political Journalist of the Year at the British Journalism Awards as the foremost journalist reporting on the Covid-19 pandemic in the care sector. His investigations were the first to reveal that patients were being systematically discharged from hospitals into care homes without testing, and he was the only journalist to secure an exclusive interview with the then Health Secretary, Matt Hancock, about the unfolding scandal. His reporting was also raised at Prime Minister's Questions.

Paul's impactful investigations across a spectrum of subjects have repeatedly changed government policy, most recently forcing the government to u-turn and reinstate its pledge to ban so-called conversion therapy. His undercover reporting on the practice has been repeatedly referenced in Parliament and earned him Broadcaster of the Year at the Pink News Awards 2018.

Outside of work, Paul is a patron of the charity Just Like Us and a co-founder of the initiative School Diversity Week, both of which try to make schools a happy environment for LGBT+ pupils.

This event will take place at our Screen School, University of Wolverhampton, City Campus, Alan Turing Building (MI) WV1 1LY.

This year we are delighted that Shani Dhanda will be delivering this year's Annual Crystal Lecture - "The Future is Accessible."

Shani is a multi-award-winning inclusion specialist and social entrepreneur, one of the UK's most influential disabled people and BBC's 100 Women of 2020. She is also an alumna of the University of Wolverhampton, graduating with a BA (Hons) in Event and Venue Management in 2011. Shani's lecture will encompass her formative time at the University and how it shaped her career from an event manager to a global disability inclusion thought leader. She will also share insights as a changemaker who helps businesses and brands break barriers and become more inclusive and accessible for their employees and customers.

By attending this event you will gain:

A lived experience perspective of what intersectionality is and why it's important for everyone

The tools to stop feeling awkward around disabled people and guilty about your privilege

An insight into how to be inclusive and why it's good for productivity and profitability

CMI Rosebowl Award:

The event includes the presentation of the CMI Rosebowl Award. This is presented to the university's MBA student who is judged to have produced the best postgraduate dissertation.

WLV Wallet's free online webinars, delivered by inspirational speakers, are designed to empower students to succeed and develop their study skills, wellbeing, resilience, and employability.

What do you want to be when you grow up?
If you were asked that question as a child, your answer to it now might be rather different.

And maybe, it's the wrong question: it should be "what do you want to do?"

So how will you use your skills, experiences, interests and energy? What will you choose to do?

In this webinar, Kathryn Bishop takes some ideas from business and philosophy to help you to answer that important question.

This webinar is offered on International Women's Day, but the ideas in it will be helpful to all students.

WLV Wallet's free online webinars, delivered by inspirational speakers, are designed to empower students to succeed and develop their study skills, wellbeing, resilience, and employability.

Arguments are one of the most important aspects of university study, in any subject.

In this workshop, we will think about how to both understand and build arguments in your discipline, and why that is the foundation of everything else that you will do as a student. Rather than approaching this as a set of rules to be learned, the session will give you a set of questions that you can use to approach your own course and develop your own skills in argumentation, whatever context you find yourself in.

David Rush is Student Development Manager at Skills for Success at University of Essex

With a particular interest in teaching writing, critical thinking and reading skills. He is the author of Build Your Argument (SAGE, 2020) and The Essential Guide of Building

Your Argument (SAGE, 2023).

WLV Wallet

Boost Your Emotional Management

Wednesday 29th March 2023, 14:00 - 15:30, Online.

Speaker: Dr Audrey Tang, Chartered Psychologist CPsychol, and an award-winning author.

Book via: <https://www.wlv-wallet.co.uk/student-journey/events/wellbeing/article/boost-your-emotional-management>

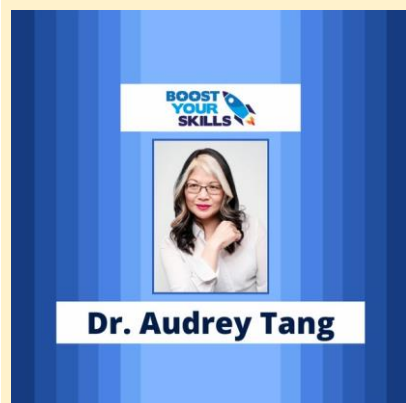

WLV Wallet's free online webinars, delivered by inspirational speakers, are designed to empower students to succeed and develop their study skills, wellbeing, resilience, and employability.

The likability of a leader, colleague, and person in general, in a similar way to physical attractiveness (like it or not) can imbue people with "The Halo Effect" (Thorndike) - a bias where if you are "liked" on initial meeting, you are also presumed to have other positive traits, and you are also more readily forgiven when things go wrong. While I can fully appreciate this is very much a "game" played at work - I do often tell my students "Hard Skills get you through the door; Soft Skills keep you in the job." Of course I would always advocate working on the technical skills, one cannot (and ought not) rely on "personality" alone, but emotional intelligence certainly helps.

This webinar will explore how stress can affect our emotional responses and practical ways in which we can build our mental and emotional strength so that we can not only take challenge in our stride, but do so in good grace too.

Dr Audrey Tang is a Chartered Psychologist CPsychol and an award-winning author. She hosts podcast 'Retrain Your Brain for Success', is presenter for DisruptiveTV, and resident psychologist on Channel 4's "Don't Diet Lose Weight", and The Chrissy B Show (Sky). She speaks at National and International conferences in the fields of resilience & soft skills, organisational wellbeing and team cohesion, and delivers CPD accredited Leadership training, and Development coaching (ICF), as well as FIRO-B profiling. While there is a place for professional intervention, Audrey believes that we can build our mental and emotional strength outside the point of crisis.

Doctoral College
UoW Lecture

University of Wolverhampton Lecture: Geopoetics in Black Country

Wednesday 19th April 2023, 18:00 – 19:00, Online via Teams – Link provided on booking

Speaker:- Dr R. M. Francis, Lecturer, Creative & Professional Writing, University of Wolverhampton.

Book via: <https://www.eventbrite.co.uk/e/university-of-wolverhampton-lecture-by-dr-rm-francis-tickets-449442593897>

In a time of fraught ecological and climate debates, when culture, community and communication lean further and further into digital landscapes, new models of meaning-making are required. Geo-poetics offers an active interdisciplinarity that bridges the infamous gulfs between the scientific and poetic frameworks, allowing it to better investigate the hyper-object of climate change and to reconfigure truth-seeking apparatus. It seeks to re-establish the connections of human and more than human and re-ground the self in “earthness”, developing what Kenneth White called “Topological Presence”. In doing so, we revitalise the important deep time connections between being and landscape - escaping the spectral traps of online life.

In this hybrid lecture-poetry reading, Dr R. M. Francis will discuss how we read and write texts that are enabled by the earth sciences, how we reconfigure our sense of place in-light of deep-time, geological and ecological concerns, and contemplate the mental and physical health benefits of geo-poetic wayfinding.

In exploring the yogic and shamanic in this method, Francis tracks his poetics during his time as Poet in Residence for the Black Country Geological Society, producing his film poem and book, The Chain Coral Chorus (Playdead Press, March 2023): using pilgrimage, wayfinding and the Earth Sciences to get to the bedrock of place-identity.

Annual Research Conference (ARC) 2023 and Researchers' Week Events

Monday 12th – Tuesday 13th June 2023 ARC On Campus
Wednesday 14th – Friday 16th June Researchers' Events

University of Wolverhampton Annual Research Conference (ARC)

This is the only conference for all research staff, research students and staff who support research, to showcase research, build networks, participate, and connect with staff and students from across the University.

The Annual Research Conference (ARC) takes place on 12-13 June 2023 and kicks off Researchers' Week (12 - 16 June 2023).

Researchers' Week aims to provide researchers with the opportunity to develop their research skills and knowledge development, as well as their networks with other researchers and their community of practice.

This year the conference will follow themes aligned with UK and global contemporary challenges:

- Towards Net zero: addressing environment and climate change challenges
- Digital society: AI, Digitalisation and Data; Driving Value and Security
- Health, behaviour and social care research
- Resilience and sustainability: including related research to Cultural assets, Place and EDI

The conference will also feature the Research Student Poster Competition and the Doctoral Depictions Photo Competition.

Find out more about ARC at www.wlv.ac.uk/arc

Researchers Week

Monday 12th to Friday 16th June 2023

Dr Debra Cureton, Doctoral College.

Details of sessions TBC

A week of workshops/seminars and opportunities for networking with the university's PGR community

The University's Annual Researchers' Week began in 2016. The decision to offer a week of activities acknowledged the growing geographical spread of PGR students and the increasing numbers studying part time, for whom attending a week of condensed input proves more feasible than attending individual events throughout the year. The stated aims in 2016 were, "to provide postgraduate researchers with the opportunity to develop their research skills and knowledge development as well as their networks with other researchers and their community of practice". These ideals have continued to guide the development of Annual Researchers' Week.

About the Researcher Development Framework (RDF)

The Researcher Development Statement (RDS) sets out the knowledge, behaviours and attributes of effective and highly skilled researchers appropriate for a wide range of careers. The RDS is for policy makers and research organisations which provide personal, professional and career development for researchers in higher education. The Researcher Development Statement is derived from the Researcher Development Framework (RDF), a major new approach to researcher development, which aims to enhance our capacity to build the UK workforce, develop world-class researchers and build our research base.

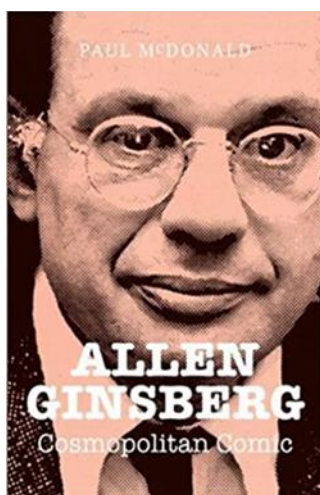

The University of Wolverhampton subscribes to the Vitae Research Development Framework. The RDF is structured in four domains encompassing the knowledge, intellectual abilities, techniques and professional standards to do research, as well as the personal qualities, knowledge and skills to work with others and ensure the wider impact of research. Within each of the domains are three sub-domains and associated descriptors, which describe different aspects of being a researcher.

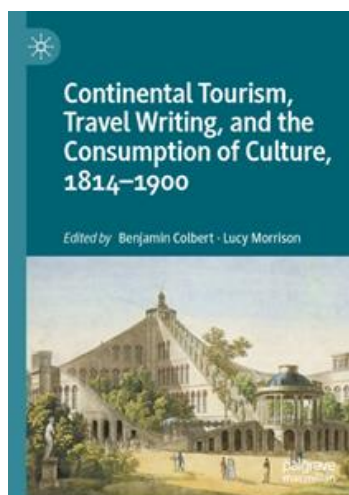

For more information on the Researcher Development Framework and associated Statement go to www.vitae.ac.uk/rdf
