

WIRE Copyright and Reuse Information

Copyright and Reuse

Full-text items deposited in WIRE are subject to copyright. Unless indicated otherwise, all rights are reserved and items may only be used in accordance with copyright law.

Conditions of reuse vary and the publisher or rights holders may allow further reproduction and reuse of the full text version. Where records identify the publisher as the copyright holder, users can verify any specific terms of use on the publisher's website.

Creative Commons licences are applied in WIRE to represent the rights and reuse information for each item.

The most commonly applied licences in WIRE are:

Attribution-NonCommercial-NoDerivs (CC BY-NC-ND)

This licence allows users to download and share an item without making any adaptations. They must credit the creator and they can't use the work commercially.

Attribution-NonCommercial (CC BY-NC)

This licence allows users to use an item in any way, as long as they credit the creator of the original work. Their work must be non-commercial.

Attribution (CC BY)

This licence allows users to use an item in any way, including commercially, as long as they credit the creator of the original work.

Full information on all Creative Commons licences is available at <https://creativecommons.org/licenses/>.

Notice and Take Down

If you consider content in WIRE to be in breach of third-party copyright please contact us at wire@wlv.ac.uk, including the URL of the record and the reason for the withdrawal request.

If the complaint is well-founded the material will be permanently withdrawn from the repository. In some cases a metadata record may remain.

WIRE bears no responsibility for any infringements of third-party copyright.